Commerce Hub

ProductStream™

Stage Stores has partnered with CommerceHub to get your products up for sale more quickly and accurately, and with less back-and-forth work.

How it works:

- Prepare your product data by filling out our product data templates.
- Add your products to ProductStream™ by uploading your completed templates. ProductStream™ will validate your data against Stage Stores' requirements, and help you fix any errors.

Step 1: Prepare your product data

Supplier will use the Stage Stores Resource Pack to provide your product data in the proper format for Stage Stores. Within, supplier will find product data templates used to load products.

Each Product Data Template contains four important worksheet tabs:

TEMPLATE: This is where you will fill in your product data.

DATA DEFINITION: Instructions for each field (including descriptions, examples, and requirements).

LIST OF VALUES: When a field requires you to choose one of Stage Stores' acceptable values, this tab provides the available options.

EXAMPLES: A few properly completed product row examples for your reference.

Providing images and other files:

Generally, the most efficient method for submitting product images is to provide URLs to each file within the Product Data Template. As an alternative, you can upload images and other files within ProductStream™. To do this, click any product, scroll down to find the attribute you'd like to provide, and click the pencil icon to see options for providing your file.

Providing products with variations:

ProductStream™ supports Stage Stores' variation requirements for a product, such as color and size. To do this, we need to know which product variations are related. Assign a Variation Grouping ID that logically groups the related product variations. This ID should be the same for all related variations. Decide which value to use based on your data.

Step 2: Add your products to ProductStream™

When you sign into ProductStream™ for the first time, you'll be guided to upload your completed Product Data Template. Once ProductStream™ processes your uploaded template, you'll be able to easily browse and review your offering to Stage Stores.

Easily identify if a product meets Stage Stores' requirements:

A red thumbs-down icon on a product means that the product's data does not meet all of Stage Stores' requirements. Click to see what's wrong and how you can fix it. A green thumbs-up icon tells you and Stage Stores buyers that your product meets their data requirements for selection.

Tip: Clicking the "Issues" tab in ProductStream™ will allow you to focus on the products that do not meet requirements. To fix issues in bulk, select "Bulk Actions" from the "Issues" tab. This will export a spreadsheet with product data for all products that do not meet requirements. Complete, then upload back into ProductStream™ using the Add/Update tab.

Updating product data:

Once you load products into ProductStream™ you can edit product data manually (one at a time), or by performing a bulk update. To edit a product manually, click on a product, and then click on an attribute value to edit. To perform a bulk update, use the same Product Template you used to add products.

Here are some important things to understand about bulk updating products with a spreadsheet.

- Only include products for which you want to update data.
- Vendor SKU is always required.
- Remove columns you don't want to update.
- If a cell has a value, it will be updated for that product.
- If a cell is left blank, no update will be made.
- If a cell contains "(empty]", the attribute value will be deleted.
- Updates will overwrite manual changes made in ProductStream™.
